

KONOK

The Konok Center for International Constructivism (KCIC)

The constructivist movement played key role in the birth of modern art in the 20th century and is still determinative in contemporary visual art and architecture. Lajos Kassák, László Moholy-Nagy, György Kepes, Victor Vasarely are among the most prominent Hungarian members of the early movement. Tamás Konok was leading figure in contemporary international constructivist art, and at the same time, a distinguished professor of BME. KCIC dedicated to his heritage would function as research facility, visual laboratory and home for international workshops. Located in downtown Budapest, Nyáry Pál street. Consulting instructor: Gábor Nemes, PhD
